

Short Bio

Ridge Roberts is an old soul in a 19-year-old body. He is a 2020 graduate of North Central Texas Academy, and he calls Granbury, Texas, home. His musical journey began at the age of seven when he picked up the fiddle for the first time and fell in love. He scoured the internet for fiddle tunes and videos and he played for hours every day teaching himself one tune after another. He plays completely by ear, and aside from the tunes his father taught him he was mostly self-taught until 2013, when he began taking fiddle lessons with Joey McKenzie. Since those early days, his love, respect, and passion for fiddling has only grown stronger.

As a competition fiddler he has achieved much success. He is a Grand Masters Champion which earned him a spot to play on the Grand Ol' Opry, he holds several National titles, he's won championships in multiple states, and he's a World Champion--the second youngest in the history of the contest to capture the title.

Whether you're a long-time fan or you're hearing Ridge for the first time, you'll see and hear the passion he has for this music, while the respect and admiration for his heroes is evident in his playing. Ridge doesn't just make you want to listen to the music, he'll make you feel it, and once you do, you'll fall in love too.
